Local and Regional Bidders ensure Auction success

Submitted by Becky Fitzgerald

Meadowlark Hills resident Sue Hunt held up an adjustable cane decorated with hand-painted roses, and the knot in my stomach began to unravel. Meadowlark Hills Foundation's first public auction of donated household items had lured several capable volunteers and a large crowd to Pottorf Hall in Cico Park on Tuesday, Sept. 1, and the raised hands and nodding heads that were prompted by auctioneer Vern Gannon did much to calm my nerves.

Five hours later, Vern approached me with good news. About 430 winning bids had generated nearly $6,300! Sales and donations of spare dollars and loose change at our Food & Drinks Booth combined for another $356.68, bringing our auction revenue to more than $6,600! (In comparison, last year's Meadowlark Hills Market on our campus produced about $5000 in sales and donations.)

There were 109 registered bidders from as far away as Topeka, and there were many, such as Meadowlark Hills residents Nyle and Norma Larson, who were pulled to Pottorf out of curiosity and a desire to help financially if they could. They did so by buying their dinner at our concession stand, stocked with pulled pork and barbecue beef sandwiches, chips, cookies and beverages from Prairie Star Restaurant.

"I used to go to auctions all the time," Norma said. "I saw lots of people who are auction regulars, and I was real pleased that there were so many Meadowlark people there. We were impressed with the crowd, and the food was great."

The item receiving the highest winning bid of $250 was a large Middle Eastern rug donated by the daughter of a late resident, Alice Nichols. Other items receiving much interest and higher bids were a ruby ring; a Charles Rogers print donated by residents Bill and Rae Stamey; Dept. 56 New England village pieces donated by Bob and Yvonne

Crawford, and two porcelain Lladro figurines.

Furniture items bringing top dollars were a headboard and queen mattress set and an antique harp table with a marble top.

I was among a few Meadowlark Hills staff members who registered to bid, and I am thrilled to have been able to add two pieces to my household – an Ethan Allen chest and hutch donated by Bob and Jan Kruh and an interesting glassware set designed for sampling vodka. Not surprisingly, I've had a few offers to help me try out these funky little glasses, which slightly resemble test tubes.

All of this year's proceeds benefit our Good Samaritan Fund, which assists residents in our healthcare households who have depleted their financial resources. Several volunteers worked many hours, ensuring that as much money raised as possible would help those in need. I'd like to thank Vern Gannon and his wife, Sherry, who were two of the first people at Pottorf Hall the morning of the auction and among the last to leave. During the auction, three other Gannon employees donated their time to our cause.

Pat Callaghan, known to many in Manhattan as an antique dealer and furniture mover, shared his time and the use of his truck and trailers over two days. He spent about 11 hours loading and hauling furniture and boxed items that have been stashed over the past several months in three storage units.

I'd like to say hip, hip hooray to the residents, staff and a Passport member who helped me prior to, during and after the auction. They collected and sorted donations, set up and took down tables and chairs at Pottorf Hall, organized and/or worked at the Food & Drinks Booth, or helped buyers load furniture into their vehicles. Please join me in thanking:

Loren Alexander, Mary Dean Apel, Lonnie Baker, Cam and Jean Beatty, Sylvia Campbell, Shirley Escamilla, Sue Hunt, Kim O'Donnell, Jayme Minton, Tracy Musselman, June Myers, Chris Nelson, Brook Nieheus, Esther Sobering, Monte Spiller, Jon Thompson and Kinzie Jo Zimmerman.

Outdoor Encounters

Submitted by Duane Miksch

Among the birds visiting our feeders, are a large number of doves. The Mourning Doves are especially prevalent. Adults were joined in mid-summer by many juveniles. The youngsters seem to flutter around less when not feeding and sometimes can be seen sitting quietly on the path in the shade outside our north windows.

What really gets our attention is the occasional Eurasian Collared Dove; rarely there will be two. The Collared Dove was introduced to the Bahamas and found its way to Florida by 1980. It quickly established there and began to spread westward. It probably reached Manhattan about the turn of the century.

The Collared Dove is larger than the Mourning Dove. It has a uniform, smooth putty-gray coat of feathers over much of its body that makes one wish he could feel its softness. The Mourning Dove has a more brownish mauve coat with dark splotches and a pinkish breast. The Collared Dove, as its name implies, has a collar like a black crayon mark on the back of its neck.

The trailing end of the Collared Dove's tail is squared off and about an inch wide compared to the very sharply printed tail of the Mourning Dove.

If you haven't yet seen a Collared Dove, keep watching. I think they are here year round and they likely will become more prevalent.

ASK SARAH

Outside is the best side!

Submitted by Sarah Duggan

In April 2015, the Duggans moved into our first house. The family's first mission? Grow grass. Our new backyard was an overwhelming mountain of mud. I grew up in the country and there, growing grass wasn't a priority. If we had it – great! If we didn't – less to mow. Edward grew up in the city without a yard. Fast forward to 2015 and two newbie homeowners are standing in the lawn and garden section at Home Depot, heads tilted in confusion.

I am surprised (and proud!) to report that after nearly four months we have a beautiful, full lawn in the back and the front. Much of the credit goes to my husband's hard work and the large amount of moisture the area received this season.

Grass at Meadowlark Hills has grown at an amazing rate all summer, as well. Because of the increased rainfall, half of the summer our lawn care professionals mowed twice a week! Typically, the grass is cut between 4.5 to 5 inches weekly, with a maximum cutting height of 5 inches (this is how the mower is set up) and the taller cut is healthier for the grass.

Something the Duggans haven't had time for is landscaping around the house. Recently, Meadowlark Hills did some updating to the landscaping around the first garden apartment as you enter campus from Kimball Avenue. Plans to do additional landscaping to the other garden apartments have not been made at this time, but there is a possibility in future budget planning to include these areas.

See you next week and thanks for stopping by!

UPCOMING EVENTS & ANNOUNCEMENTS

Kudos, also, to Paul Bridges and Prairie Star Restaurant staff who made sure we had tasty items at the concession stand; transportation driver John Mies, who drove our laundry truck filled with packed boxes of donations to Pottorf on auction morning, and Sarah Duggan, Community Relations Director, who coordinated some of our publicity.

Finally, this event would not have been possible without the generous donations of furniture and household items from numerous residents and family members. Thank you! Several of the auction-goers own second-hand stores and were buying inventory, while others were excited to be able to buy nice items for their homes. I spoke with one young couple who filled the back of their truck with a buffet, two chairs and a few lamps, and they were especially pleased the auction prices fit their budget.

A few people approached me during the auction and asked if we would be organizing a similar event in the future. They said they liked the variety and quality of items, were having fun visiting and bidding, and enjoyed supporting a worthy cause in the process.

Weighing the pros and cons with Lonnie the day after the event, we determined the positives definitely outweigh any negatives, and have pledged to host a bigger and better event in 2016. To that end, we would like to increase the number of donations, perhaps adding some more valuable items to the mix, and would like to decrease our expenses, the biggest of which is the fees we paid over the past several months to store the donated items.

I'm pleased to report that I've already made strides in the Reduce Expenses category. Amherst Self-Storage, managed by Diamond Real Estate Management, has agreed to provide two large storage units indefinitely at no charge, and St. Thomas More Catholic Church has said we can use their large fellowship hall for the auction in exchange for a freewill donation.

Quality donations will be accepted from anyone, so please spread the word to your friends and family. I will provide receipts that may be used at tax time. If you have items to donate or have suggestions for next year's event, please contact me at 323-3843.
