Rain, Rain, Go Away!

by Sarah Duggan, Community Relations Director

The Courtyard Project is nearing completion, but the rain continues to create delays! Due to the most recent bout with Mother Nature, the Courtyard Party Week has been pushed to mid-July. Remaining items to be completed include some final water and gas work, fence construction, and clear roof added to the pergola.

Fence panels on the east side of the Courtyard were installed this week. When completed, the panels will have the ability to be backlit in the evening hours!

For the week of celebration residents, staff, and families can look forward to many outdoor activities, including: Bocce Ball lessons, Special-Edition Coffee Corner with a grilled dessert, National Hot Dog Day, and an outdoor Friday Night Program featuring music.

Although the Courtyard seems inviting with the arrival of the furniture, please steer clear of the space until the project is completed. We are looking forward to hosting many fun day and evening events in the weeks to come!

Concrete Work, July 2

The sliding door at the Lyle House entrance will be closed all day on Tuesday, July 2, starting at 8 a.m. due to concrete work. If you need access to Lyle House, Stolzer House, or Collins House, please do so by ringing the Honstead House doorbell and utilizing their connecting hallway.

The sliding door will re-open at 5 p.m. the same day. If you have questions, please contact Taylor at (785) 323-3800.

Afghanistan

submitted by Dotty Blacker

Many of my stories are related to the four years when my husband was stationed at the AFB hospital in Wiesbaden, Germany. The hospital building itself was interesting. It had been a German military hospital during the war; curved hallways so nobody could shoot straight down the hall. There was an underground tunnel to the headquarters. The hospital was a desired location for military or government people in foreign locations because something like 98% of the physicians stationed there were board certified in their specialty.

Wiesbaden survived largely unscathed for the war because the allies realized they wanted to make it a headquarters. There was a beautiful golf course and officer's club. Ironically, the gestapo headquarters building was designated by the Americans as the family services center.

There is an interesting sidelight to the story of the Berlin airlift out of Wiesbaden. It had been decided that the airlift couldn't be accomplished. A civilian showed up who said he could do it. They let him try and you know the ending. I do not remember the hero's name, but when Sam Walton started his enterprise he hunted down and hired the same man to organize the supply chain for Walmart.

One of the patients my husband treated with hip surgery was American Ambassador to Afghanistan, Robert Neumann. He invited anybody to come visit Afghanistan and we were the only people to accept.

First, enroute we stopped in Tehran, Iran, at the invitation of the 3-star Army General, second in the authority chain to the Ambassador. The General had caused quite a commotion (including a call from General Westmorland) because instead of going to the Army hospital in Frankfurt, he chose the Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden where my husband performed his shoulder surgery. We took an interesting side trip to Isfahan to see the breathtaking architecture.

On to Afghanistan. The Ambassador had told us it was one of the three most primitive countries in the world. I had thought Thailand, Burma, Cambodia were primitive, but the Ambassador laughed and said we should come to Afghanistan.

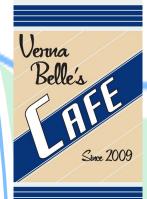

He told us that one of the main problems was trying to get American adventures to understand that you cannot simply rent a jeep and take off. The natives would be happy to do you in, not because of your dollars or passport or even the Jeep. It was because the tires on the Jeep made good

A USAid plane was flying to a very remote village in the north, up close to the Russian border and the Ambassador asked if we wanted to go. "No" was not an option. We flew in a four-seater up the Bamyan Valley, over the city of tears and past the two large Buddha sculptures in the side of a mountain. I cannot believe I got to see those two Buddha sculptures carved in the mountain side.

The Metropolitan Museum in New York offered the Taliban $500,000 and the expense of coming to cut them out of the mountain for preservation. The Taliban chose to blow them up.

Flying into the "hospital" location was a bit nerve rattling. A small dirt strip on the side of a mountain. When we got out of the airplane, the head honcho came out and said "Gerry Blacker!" A past encounter of the Air Force life. They spent some time talking about possible solutions to problems because there was such a limited treatment supply available. One of the patients was dying from rabies. His village had been attacked by a sick wolf and he killed it by sticking his arm down its throat.

The Ambassador was next assigned to Riyadh, Saudi Arabia. Household items enroute, the Ambassador and Henry Kissinger had a dispute and Neumann was instantly fired. The dispute was because Neumann cautioned that tensions were rising in the Arab world and America should pay attention. The Ambassador told us that the reason he was fired was because Kissinger did not think a Jew who had survived Dachau should have an ear for anything the Arabs has to say. And look what has happened.
