On The Queen Mary

by Helen Roser

Recently, I have been dreaming of her majesties' ship, The Queen Mary, knowing she is in distress.

As a kid, it was my dream to take a voyage aboard her. I never did, but I saw her twice. During WWII, I saw her in New York Harbor. She was painted grey-blue to not be so noticeable at sea. She was waiting to take our troops to Europe.

My friend, who was aboard her as she took them for D Day, was killed as he went ashore.

After the war, the Queen's owners offered her and other ships for sale. But her need of a large port and costly maintenance was a turn-off for responsible buyers.

Then the Queen's owners did a terrible thing. Instead of giving her a dignified, appreciative "end" and allowing her parts to be used for respectful needed purposes, they offered her for sale at a very low price.

The city of Long Beach snatched up the "bargain." They envisioned fame and fortune from turning her into a tourist trap. Not on their agenda was the Queen's high cost of maintenance.

One would-be tourist attraction after another failed. That the Queen required maintenance was ignored by one and all.

Her pathetic condition finally came to the attention of some who realize she is on the verge of capsizing.

Instead of putting her out of her misery and giving her a dignified

“farewell,” then allowing her parts to be used in useful service, there are wails that she must be restored. “Better than used for razor blades.”

Such persons are failing to consider the Queen’s reality: She is a very high-cost vessel, just to have sitting there.

I had planned to write a true story about the revenge of the Queen’s last crew. The city of Long Beach, as her proud new owners, ordered her departing crew to “put all your keys in the barrel as you leave.”

So the sad crew did. Then they went home to England. To make a long story short: Long Beach found their big barrel of keys had no clue to what any key unlocked.

“The key problem ‘never got in the news.’ I think I know who gave the Queen’s crew the idea of a ‘departing message.’” He had wanted to buy her for a floating exhibit of American exports, but couldn’t raise the price of buying her. The owners invited him as their guest on her final trip.

He didn’t join them for the entire trip but took a helicopter to meet her and boarded her for her last mile at sea.

I went aboard her once in Long Beach, briefly. Seeing her as a tourist trap made me cry. I hope she will be given a dignified end. Let her parts serve a useful purpose. Rest in peace, dear Queen Mary.

WHO AM I?

Carol Balding was featured in last week's Who Am I article. Did you guess correctly?

Carol dedicated over 40 years of her life as a nurse. She received her nursing degree in the 1950s when K-State and KU offered a dual program that took five years to complete. She spent half the time in the classroom and the other half in on-the-job training at KU Medical Center. She graduated with a dual degree in home economics and nursing. When asked why she decided upon nursing, Carol said, "It's because I enjoy taking care of people."

When she graduated, she took a position at KU Med Center, in Kansas City, Kan., and worked there for five years. She remembers her time there fondly. Carol went floor to floor checking on charge nurses and patients.

Around this time, she attended a friend's wedding and there she reconnected with a man named Jim Balding, who she had briefly dated in high school. Jim's older sister happened to be Carol's best friend in high school! They married on Nov. 27, 1958. After their wedding, Carol continued to work as a nurse, this time at a local hospital in Manhattan, and Jim worked on his degree at K-State. Carol worked as a nurse in pediatrics, surgical, and obstetrics.

The Baldings moved to North Carolina when Jim graduated from K-State because of an exciting job opportunity.

It was there that their wonderful daughter, Amy, was born! About five years went by and they made the decision to move back to Manhattan to be closer to family. Jim's work with Feed Technology included opportunity for travel, including internationally. Carol remembers one trip in particular when they had the chance to go to Europe, and stay on the Blue Danube River. She said it was just "magical."

When they retired, Carol and Jim continued to travel throughout the country, and enjoyed their cabin at Lake Elbo. They eventually moved to Meadowlark, which Carol has called home for 11 years.

Carol credits Jim for knowing when it was the right time to move to Meadowlark. She said Meadowlark took the guess work out of important decisions that needed to be made when Jim passed quickly of cancer, about seven years ago. She appreciates all of the support she received, and still does, from staff and residents!

Currently, Carol enjoys the many comforts Meadowlark provides, including the festive events and time with friends! She loves to spend time with her daughter, grandchildren, and their significant others! She encourages others who are thinking about moving to Meadowlark to take the plunge, and invites them to reach out to her if they want to meet up for some quality chit-chat!
